Message from the University President

Information and Communication Technology (ICT) is one of the most important and promising technologies in present society. The progress of ICT is quite rapid and widespread. In this situation, our university is the first and the largest ICT-dedicated university in Japan, and it ranks number one among public Japanese universities in producing start-up companies. Our university is well internationalized by hiring 40% of our faculty members from outside Japan. Moreover, our university was selected by the Japanese government as one of the “Top Global Universities”.

I hope all of you enhance your abilities for a brilliant future career, based on the resources we offer during your stay at our university. I also hope that you can surely establish yourself at an unexpected higher level when you graduate from our university.

2. History

Sep. 2014	- Adopted by the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology, for the FY2014 "Support Program for Creating Top Global Universities"
Apr. 2008	- Establishment of the "Undergraduate Department of Computer Science and Engineering," and start of the new curriculum - Establishment of the "Graduate Department of Computer and Information Systems" and the "Graduate Department of Information Technology and Project Management."
Apr. 2006	- Establishment of "the Public University Corporation, the University of Aizu" - Transfer of the founding authority of the University of Aizu to the "Public University Corporation, the University of Aizu" from the "Fukushima Prefectural Government"
Apr. 1999	- Establishment of the Graduate School "Doctoral Program"
Apr. 1997	- Establishment of the Graduate School "Master's Program"
Apr. 1993	- Opening of the University of Aizu
Dec. 1992	- Approval of the establishment of the University of Aizu by the Ministry of Education

The people of Aizu have been diligent about childhood education since the Nisshinkan clan school was established in the Edo Era during the rule of the Aizu Clan. The area, however, had only one institution of higher education – Fukushima Prefectural Aizu Junior College – which was opened in 1951. People of Aizu continued their campaigns to invite a four-year university to the region since the middle of 1960s.

Given the importance of nurturing leaders who can contribute to advancement of information science from an outward-looking standpoint in the midst of globalization and informatization, Fukushima Prefecture decided to establish, in the education-focused area of Aizu, a four-year university which solely pursues computer science and engineering education and research.

In 1993, the University of Aizu opened, as the first university in Japan solely dedicated to computer science and engineering.

【General Education】

Humanities and Social Sciences (HS)

Students choose four or more courses from Humanities and Social Sciences Courses, including Philosophy, Literature, Psychology, Economics, Jurisprudence, Logic, and Theory of Physical education. By acquiring a wide range of knowledge not limited to just computer science and engineering, students develop into members of society with a rich sense of humanity capable of life-long active learning.

Physical Activities (PA)

Physical activity courses are strongly recommended and help students develop the abilities and habits they need to maintain rich, healthy social lives.

【English Languages】

Cross-cultural

Through the study of a foreign language, students will become aware of multiple points of view, and will learn to take into account cultural differences in order to communicate successfully.

English Language Courses (EN)

Courses in years 1 and 2 provide students with a 4-skills (listening, speaking, reading, writing) English education based on tasks required for university-level education. Courses in years 3 and 4 provide students with education to cultivate the skills needed to use English in the fields of computer science and engineering. These courses teach students how to read English documents, to prepare them to write research papers in an internationally-recognized format, to express their own opinions, to present and discuss research orally in English and to communicate competently in English in a day-to-day workplace setting.

Japanese Language Courses (JP) (Not open to native or near-native Japanese speakers)

Students will develop four basic skills (listening, speaking, reading and writing) and improve their communication abilities through student-centered tasks in class. In first year, students learn basic grammar and expressions, which encourage them to learn not only the Japanese language, but also culture through communication with Japanese people. In second year, students learn polite expressions, advanced business-level Japanese language, develop their debate skills, and consequently can aim at getting a job in Japan."

【Specialized Fundamental Courses】

Mathematics (MA)

Math courses teach computational principles through basic lectures and exercises on Linear Algebra and Calculus. In these courses, student develops specific abilities regarding the organization and analysis of data by studying probability and statistics. Higher level mathematical skills needed as basic knowledge for specialized courses, such as Fourier analysis are also developed. Through these courses students improve logical thinking and objective judgment and develop skills applicable to specialized computer science and engineering courses.

Natural Sciences (NS)

In Natural Sciences courses, students explore the natural laws of physics by studying dynamics and electromagnetism through basic lectures and exercises. Students also acquire high-level knowledge regarding quantum mechanics and semiconductor devices required by specialized courses. This sort of learning promotes logical thinking and objective decision-making skills in preparation to apply the knowledge learned in these courses in specialized computer science and engineering courses.

Computer Fundamentals (LI)

Students gain the essential foundations needed as computer scientists and computer engineers, such as computer literacy and basic knowledge of both hardware and software. They also learn information ethics, information security, and examples of applications of computers in the real world.

Programming Languages (PL)

Students' progress from learning and implementing basic programming to learning the knowledge and skills required to write high-level programs. By learning multiple languages, including C and Java, students appreciate the differences between languages and develop the ability to learn new program languages.

Fundamentals of Computer Science & Engineering (FU)

These courses are a bridge between specialized fundamental courses and specialized courses, exploring computer technology and knowledge of software engineering. Specifically, there are courses on the basic principles to building computers such as Computer Architecture and Operating Systems, courses on the basic principles to express and analyze information with computers such as Discrete Systems and Information Theory and Data Compression, and courses on the basic principles to efficiently solve real-world problems with computers, such as Language Processing Systems.

【Specialized Courses】

Computer Systems (SY)

In order to develop engineers/specialists who can design and build new computers, based on operating system principles and architecture studied in fundamentals of computer science & engineering courses, the computer system courses cover the following basic knowledge and skills regarding hardware and software;

- (1) Digital IC design: logic circuit design, layout design
- (2) Analog IC design: electric/electronic circuits, interface IC
- (3) Application: embedded systems, parallel systems

Computer Network Systems (CN)

To develop computer network and system engineers capable of succeeding in our networked society, courses cover the following basic knowledge and skills regarding computer networking and network programming;

- (1) Basic knowledge of networking: internet architecture, network models, protocols, communication systems
- (2) Network programming skills: socket programming, web programming, application development
- (3) Network operation and administration: network design, architecture, monitoring, administration and performance analysis
- (4) Other topics: multimedia networks, mobile networks, and network security

Applications (IT)

To develop engineers who can apply computers to various fields, including business, medicine, education, environment, and space exploration, students are taught basic knowledge of information analysis and information use and the skills to apply that knowledge to real problems. Fundamental topics are Digital Signal Processing for Sound/Audio/Images, Natural Language Processing, Machine Learning, Virtual Reality and Human Interface, Computer Graphics, Robotics and Control, etc.

Software Engineering (SE)

These courses aim to develop engineers with knowledge of the basic methods, techniques and tools of software engineering capable of working with today's complex, large-scale software development. In order to develop the ability to apply this knowledge to real-world problems, these courses provide students with practical exercises and basic knowledge on the development process, project management, and team-based collaboration.

As software is used in a vast range of fields, understanding the field and environment is vital to software development. The ability to extract the demands of the customer and the user through dialog, the ability to create designs that meet competing demands, the ability to learn and plan independently, and the ability to balance time and cost are all required of software engineers. These courses give students the practical experience needed to develop high-quality, high-value software given these kinds of limitations.

Integrated Exercise (IE)

These courses aim to develop engineers who can apply their knowledge to the resolution of practical problems. Students will work on exercises with applying the knowledge that they accumulated from different courses offered in 1st and 2nd years of undergraduate school.

Others (OT)

By learning a wide range of knowledge through university-industry cooperative education, top-down education, and project-based learning (PBL) in small-sized classes, students develop communication skills, the ability to work as part of a team, and the abilities needed to plan and start businesses, including knowledge of business, while fostering entrepreneurial spirit. These courses also develop basic professional skills through Career Design I and II.

【Graduation Theses】

Graduation Theses, which are written and presented in English, represent an application of all the basic and advanced knowledge acquired by students until that point. Graduation Thesis is an opportunity for students to search for, define, and solve a problem on their own, with help from their GT advisor, and improves the student's comprehensive abilities as scientists and engineers. These abilities include logical composition, the basic ability to perform tasks in English, ethics of researchers and engineers, and proactive learning habits for adapting to new environments and growing professionally.

【Teaching Profession】

We offer a curriculum aimed at the acquisition of a First Class Teaching Certificate for teaching mathematics in Junior and Senior High Schools, and a First Class Teaching Certificate for teaching Information in Senior High Schools.

(※Note 1) Strongly Recommended Courses: Courses recommended as basic courses of computer science and engineering.

(※Note 2) Exposure to cutting edge research results (top) and thinking about what kind of basics need to be learned to achieve optimal results (down) comprises the philosophy behind top-down education. ("Top-down refers to project- or research-motivated education, using a research question as context for learning.

Science refers to knowledge that has been organized as a single system. At the same time, it includes new expansion and creative activities. From here, there are many branches that extend from the fundamental knowledge (roots) that serves as the foundation for new expansion.

The curriculum of the UoA was developed as a result of thinking about what is the most important for the academic field of computer science and engineering, systematically teaching the fundamental knowledge that crosses every discipline within the field of computer science and engineering, and pursuing the ideal form of education, which is further cultivating the specialized adaptability of students.

1 Characteristics of the Curriculum

The UoA's curriculum is based on CSC2013(Computer Science Curricula 2013), which are the pioneering educational curricula for the computer science and engineering field developed by the IEEE ^(Note 1) and ACM ^(Note 2). This curriculum is designed to allow flexible response to the fast pace of change in our computer-reliant society. Further, it also respects the individuality and independence of each student by allowing them take specialized field courses appropriate for the future career they have chosen. (*Furthermore, from the 2008 academic year, a new "Department of Computer Science and Engineering" was established, and the previous "Department of Computer Software" and "Department of Computer Hardware" were abolished as of AY2008. Further, the quarter-based term system was newly introduced beginning in AY2016. The new curriculum was introduced from the 2018 academic year.)

(2) Types of Courses

	Types of Courses	Overview
A	Strongly Recommended (SR) Courses	These courses are recommended to be taken as fundamentals of computer science and engineering regardless of which specialization a student takes.
B	Field Recommended Courses	These courses are recommended to students taking a certain field.
C	Other Courses	These are courses that do not belong to A or B but have an objective of more widely acquiring high-level knowledge.

D	Optional Courses	These are courses that cannot count towards the number of credits required for graduation.
E	Required Courses	Only Graduation Theses is required. (*Refer to "3 Graduation Theses" for more information.)

2 Course Categories

Categories
Major Categories		Subcategories
● General Education Courses General Education Courses aim at fostering of individuals with a rich quality of humanity and sophistication, with an emphasis on education of fundamental ways of thinking and approaches toward learning in general, including science, nurturing of human qualities, fundamentals for understanding society and elements necessary for specialized education.		The category of humanities and social sciences consists of courses regarding the humanities, social sciences, and physical education. Many fields in the humanities employ approaches using computers, and the humanities have a great influence on computer science. Liberal arts courses aim to have students understand fundamental ways of thinking and approaches toward learning in general, including science, nurturing of human qualities and expansion of students' understanding in backgrounds and surrounding areas of computer science. Courses in social sciences aim to lay a foundation so that students can correctly understand problems pertaining to society, economy and politics, etc. as general knowledge required for members of society. Attending these courses, students will establish a basis for understanding the social significance and responsibilities concerning usage of computers. Physical education courses aim to improve students' health and physical strength with a focus on scientific theories regarding health and sports.
		The objective of Physical Activity courses is to build the physical strength that serves as the foundation for a healthy, energetic life. Further, it aims to teach the practical abilities needed to understand the meaningfulness of exercise in one's daily life through the maintenance and improvement of students' health by increasing their familiarity with exercise.
● Foreign Language Courses		English language education at the UoA is aimed at providing practical and pragmatic education, especially in computer science fields. For computer science study and research, advanced English proficiency is essential, since important information in manuals, specialty journals, theses and websites is often described in English. Many comments in computer programming are written in English, so abilities to read and write in English are very important for computer programming as well. Therefore, the University of Aizu specifically provides students with English education as a foreign language course in order to acquire international communication skills, namely, courses focusing on speaking, listening, writing and reading in English. Learners can benefit from small classes of approximately 30 students, CLR instructional Lab (ILab) and CLR CALL Lab (CALL) classrooms, which are dedicated for English language classes. The English language courses are all elective courses classified into either "Strongly Recommended Courses" (standard years for registration: 1st and 2nd years) and "Other (advanced) Courses" (standard years for registration: 3rd and 4th years). The Strongly Recommended Courses are further categorized into "Listening," "Speaking," "Reading," and "Writing" and "Thesis Writing and Presentation" and each course has a different level. In addition, "Thesis Writing and Presentation," a course for 4th-year students in the second semester, supports students in writing graduation theses in English and improving presentation skills.
		Other Language Courses (JP) Japanese language courses are provided for students who are not native (or near-native) speakers of Japanese.
Specialized Education Courses	● Specialized Fundamental Courses These courses are designed for students to learn fundamentals in computer science and engineering. Fundamentals taught in these courses will become a basis for advanced courses.	Mathematics and related courses (MA) Cover mathematical fundamentals which are required for algorithms, computer graphics, simulation, performance analysis, etc.
		Natural Sciences and Related Courses (NS) Mathematics and physics provide fundamental knowledge not only for computer science but for scientific technology in general. Natural Science courses cover physics fundamentals and its applications which are required for understanding of how devices and systems for electronic equipment including computers run.
		Computer Fundamentals and Related Courses (LI) Focus on skills to utilize computers as tools through lectures and exercises, and learn fundamental knowledge regarding configuration of computers, so that students can get a firm perspective regarding computer in general. These courses will inspire students' inquisitiveness, leading them to further pursue their studies and research, by providing students with opportunities to gain experience in how computers can be utilized for social life.
		Programming and Related Courses (PL) The term, "programming" represents languages in the world of computers. Without knowledge regarding programming, it is not possible to use and understand computers. Students start from introductory courses designed for beginners, and step up to higher-level programming languages, brushing up their skills through exercises.
		Foundations of Computer Science and Engineering and Related Courses (FU) Cover computer technologies and fundamentals related to software.
	● Specialized Courses Focus on knowledge and skills essential for computer experts to have students gain confidence as	Computer Systems and Related Courses (SY) Hardware and software are both wheels to operate computers. These courses have been designed so that students can understand that hardware and software are inseparable, and how computers, which have complex systems inside, work successfully.
		Computer Network Systems and Related Courses (CN) Modern industry, economics and lifestyles are not sustainable without computer networks including the Internet. These courses have been designed so that students can study fundamentals regarding networks.
Applications (IT) Computer technologies have extended application fields. Individual application fields have specific algorithms and derivative technologies. Several major applications will be picked up for students to study through the courses listed below.

	computer scientists and/or engineers.	Software Engineering and Related Courses (SE)	Deal with technologies useful for development of large-scale software systems.
		Integrated Exercise(IE)	Through practical training on hardware and embedded systems, or practical training on software development, we will establish related knowledge that we have learned and strengthen our practical skills.
		Other Courses (OT)	Note : *Students can earn up to 8 credits from Other Courses. *Students can earn up to 4 credits from Extracurricular Activity Course. *Students can earn up to 4 credits from Factories for Experiencing Starting Up Ventures 1~4. *For registration for the graduate courses, the conditions described below must be satisfied. (Please contact Student Affair Section.)
●Graduation Theses	—		"Graduation Theses" is the only required undergraduate course. This special year-round course is the important course, because it represents the culmination of an undergraduate's four years at the UoA. Only a handful of students are assigned to each GT supervisor, allowing each student to receive in-depth instruction. Individual students must conduct research on their own initiative to complete their graduation theses. As it is mandatory for all students to write their graduation thesis in English, students are strongly recommended to take "Thesis Writing and Presentation" in the second semester of their fourth year.

3 Graduation Thesis

For students to work on graduation theses, they must satisfy specific, and follow due procedures for acquisition of the academic credits for this course.

(1) Assignment to Graduation Thesis (GT) Supervisors

Students will be assigned to GT supervisors during their third year. After graduation research theme presentations by faculty members, students will have interviews, etc. with their preferred faculty members and be assigned to their supervisors. It is important for students to be aware of what they would like to pursue from their first year and to deepen relationships with many faculty members.

In the case of a supervisor from a department other than the three academic divisions of "Computer Science," "Computer Engineering" and "Information Systems" (except for those who have been officially recognized as qualified for being in charge of Graduate School courses), also choose a sub-supervisor from one of those three academic divisions.

(2) Number of Students Assigned to a Graduation Thesis Supervisor

Since supervision of graduation theses is based on individualized instruction, the maximum number of students for supervision shall be, in principle, four per supervisor. This includes Early assignment to a GT supervisor. For details, please refer to "II - iii University of Aizu Honors Program."

(3) Requirements for Assignment to Graduation Thesis Supervisors

Students are required to satisfy the following requirement for assignment to their graduation thesis supervisors, in principle.
Enrollment at the Undergraduate Program for at least two years

(4) Requirements for Starting Graduation Theses

Students, upon proceeding to the 4th year, start working on their graduation theses. Requirements for starting graduation theses are as follows:

- Enrollment at the Undergraduate Program for at least three years. (Excluding "advanced standing admission (= transfer)" students)
- Assignment to graduation thesis supervisors
- At least 100 academic credits for courses other than optional courses

If you have not yet fulfilled these prerequisites, you cannot start a graduation thesis, and your graduation will be postponed. However, depending on their academic performance in the 1st semester of the 4th year, there are cases where students are allowed to start graduation theses in October. But please note that those students must be engaged in GT work for 1 year.

If recognized as excellent based on "The University of Aizu Regulation Concerning Early Graduation," students may start their graduation theses in the second semester of their 3rd year. (For details regarding early graduation, please refer to "8 Graduation Requirements.”)

(5) Supervision of Graduation Theses

3rd-year students will be provided with advice regarding their registration under supervision of their GT supervisors, take relevant courses systematically and develop their theme of graduation thesis. They may be allowed to join seminars and other activities for 4th-year students.

Proceeding to the 4th year, students who have fulfilled the afore-mentioned GT requirements exert full-fledged efforts to their GT. Most seminars and meetings, etc. are held on a periodic basis, and interim presentations to report GT progress are held by each laboratory. Based on results of the GT progress survey in first semester, the Academic Affairs Committee will provide instructions to students who have not yet achieved desirable progress on their graduation theses.

(6) Changing Graduation Thesis Supervisors

Changing GT supervisors halfway requires an official request to the Student Affairs Division, along with the designated form. This request, by way of deliberation by the Academic Affairs Committee, will be approved if a new supervisor has vacancy to accept more students and if both current and new supervisors agree on the change.

The course, “Graduation Theses,” is a course in which students work on GT while receiving supervision from the same GT supervisors for one year, in principle. IF students change their supervisors, it will take one year for students to complete graduation theses from the date of change of their supervisors. Please pay extra attention to the timing of changing GT supervisors.

(7) Graduation Thesis Completion Schedule

The GT Completion Process	○ Spring GT	○ Fall GT
Mid-term Presentation of Graduation Thesis	Mid October	Mid April
Finalization of GT title and referees (other than the GT supervisor)	Mid January	Late July
Submission of the GT manuscript to the GT supervisor by the student	Late January	Mid August
GT Presentations	Mid February	Late August
Submission of final GT manuscript and consent forms for the use of graduation thesis	Late February	End of August

(8) Mid-term Presentation of Graduation Thesis

Students shall present a poster as a Mid-term Presentation of Graduation Thesis. The mid-term presentation evaluation is included as part of a final score of a GT.

The evaluation considers the following items:

- Purpose
- Approach
- Status
- Schedule
- Overall Grade

If students do not present a poster as a mid-term presentation, their graduation thesis shall not be subject to review and academic credits for GT in the semester. Students who will re-register for GT must make a mid-term presentation again. However, this excludes students given special approval from the Academic Affairs Committee, such as students qualified for early graduation.

(9) Graduation Thesis Presentations

Students shall present their graduation theses on a public occasion. Presentations of graduation theses are included in the evaluation procedures. About 20 minutes is allotted per student. (10 minutes: presentation, 9 minutes: Q&A session, 1 minute: preparation) Presentations shall be conducted in English, in principle. Detailed schedule regarding presentations will be notified at a later date.

(10) Evaluation of Graduation Theses

Graduation theses shall be reviewed by a total of two reviewers: the relevant supervisor and one referee.

The weight of their relative scores shall be 2:1. Following a comprehensive evaluation taking the following items into consideration, a final score including the mid-term presentation evaluation shall be given.

- The level of challenge of the graduation thesis theme
- Quality of the thesis written in English, which serves as the official record of the GT, in terms of its content and expressions
- Student's attitude and persuasiveness during the presentation
- Precision of responses to questions
- Student's enthusiasm and stability while they have been working on the graduation thesis

(11) Submission of Completed Theses

Your graduation thesis must be within 4 to 8 pages of A4 sheets.

It is regarded as appropriate that papers in the field of science and engineering should be briefly compiled in the volume of four to six pages like this.

Please follow the guidelines indicated in the following URL:

http://www.u-aizu.ac.jp/official/students/sad/stsa14_j.html (Japanese only)

Printed theses are kept in the University Library, and electronic versions are stored in the particular directory, so that graduation theses can be read at any time.

4 Academic Credit System

Each course is allotted a certain number of credits, and students are required to earn the designated number of credits to graduate from the Undergraduate School.

(1) Academic Credits Criteria

One credit is allotted for completion of course work in the inside/outside classrooms shall be forty-five hours for relevant courses, based on calculation of the following calculation methods:

- One credit for each fifteen hours of a lecture style and exercise style classes
- One credit for each thirty hours of classes for experiments, practical training, and skills practice

* 1 hour = 45 minutes

(2) Accreditation of Academic Credits

Credits for courses are recognized by semester, in principle. Graduation theses for fourth-year students are conducted throughout the academic year and credits are earned by recognition of achievements of graduation theses.

(3) The Maximum Number of Credits for Registration

The upper limit of credits for registration is 28 credits per semester and 56 credits per year, excluding those of optional courses, teaching profession courses, intensive courses during vacation periods and the graduation thesis course. (Please refer to "The University of Aizu Regulation Concerning the Maximum Number of Credits for Course Registration".)

5 Class Hours

Class periods for the University are as follows;

1 st Period	2 nd Period	3 rd Period	4 th Period	5 th Period	6 th period	7 th period	8 th period	9 th period	10 th period	11 th period

※Handling of class cancellations due to inclement weather

Please confirm the information on handling of class cancellations due to inclement weather in III Student Life, 18.

6 Class Term Categories

Classes are conducted in a quarter system consisting of a first and second semester divided into two quarters respectively.

First Semester (Quarter 1, Quarter 2) April 1 – September 30

Second Semester (Quarter 3, Quarter 4) October 1 – March 31

7 Prerequisites for Registration of Courses

(Please also refer to “10. (6) Restrictions on Course Registration”.)

(1) Standard Year of Course Completion

A systematic curriculum for studying computer science has been established at the University, and the standard years for registration when students should register for and take specific courses are designated. In cases where students cannot take courses and earn credits in designated academic years, they may have difficulties in re-taking of the courses in following years due to class schedules, etc. Students are encouraged to register for courses in the academic years designated for the courses.

(※NOTE 1) Students who wish to register for courses for students of upper grade levels are allowed to register for those courses only in cases where there are vacant seats for the courses. To attend those courses, obtain approval from instructors in charge of relevant courses, and hand in the designated form, “Course Registration Request Form for Courses Usually Only Open to Students of Upper Grade Levels” to the Academic Affairs Section by the designated deadline.

(※NOTE 2) Concerning first-/second-year students who have attained 500 points or higher in TOEIC exams, they are qualified to take English language courses normally offered for third-year students. Those who wish to do so must obtain approval from the relevant instructors of the courses within a designated period and submit the designated form, “Application for Taking Advanced English Courses,” to the Student Affairs Division.

(2) Pre-courses

There are close relationship among several courses, and classes are held on the premise of the knowledge of the preceding courses, so be sure to check with the syllabus when you take the course.

8 Graduation Requirements

To graduate from the University, the minimum academic residence period of four years is required. Additionally, as specified in the following table, ATTACHED TABLE NO. 3, students must earn the minimum requisite number of credits set for respective course categories, and must acquire at least 128 academic credits in total (with the exception of optional courses) including the following:

- At least 10 credits from general education courses;
- At least 15 credits from English language courses;
- At least 95 credits from Upper Division courses; and
- 8 credits from the course, “Graduation Theses”

If the designated requirements are fulfilled based on the “University of Aizu Regulation Concerning Early Graduation,” relevant students may graduate from the University 3 years after their admission. In case of early graduation, students are encouraged to go on to the Graduate School, as they can complete both the Undergraduate/Graduate Programs within 5 years and obtain the Master’s degree. (For requirements for early graduation, please refer to “The University of Aizu Regulation Concerning Early Graduation”.)

9 Promotion Requirements

Students are required to fulfill both of the requirements listed as (1) and (2) below by the end of their second year in order to register for the courses designated for third- and/or fourth-year students.

(1) Students must earn at least 55 credits from strongly-recommended courses designated for first- and/or second-year students.

(2) Students must score at least 400 points for one of the TOEIC Listening & Reading tests developed and produced by the ETS. Only the scores that students got after the admission to the University are valid, in principle.

If students fail to clear either one or both of the requirements listed above, they cannot go on to register for the courses designated for third- and/or fourth-year students. In that case, they have to wait at least one semester to be allowed to register for the courses until it is confirmed that they have cleared the requirements at the end of each semester.

10 Course Registration

“Registration for courses” is mandatory to attend courses and earn credits. If you attend a course without registration, or make a mistake in the registration procedures, academic credits will not be authorized.

To avoid such trouble, you are encouraged to participate in the explanatory meeting for course registration held every academic year, and follow instructions for course registration.

(1) Selection of Fields

By the end of the first semester in the first-year of enrollment, students select a “field” through “Introduction of Computer Science and Engineering,” one of the courses in Computer Fundamental Courses, etc. Then students select a “field” taking into consideration their curriculum advisors’ opinions. Changing fields within a specified period of the semester is permitted. However, approval from the relevant curriculum advisor or graduation thesis supervisor is required.

Advice regarding course registration from class mentors and graduation thesis advisors shall also be provided to students as necessary.

●Curriculum Advisors (As of April 1, 2019 Titles omitted)

(2) Course Registration Planning

Students are required to formulate a course registration plan for all the courses they plan to take by their graduation, taking into account fields they have chosen and academic interests, and check the plan from time to time. Upon registration for courses, pay attention to relations between courses based on advice from your curriculum advisors. 128 academic credits are necessary for graduation, and this should also be taken into account for course registration.

When you register for courses, it is very important to take into account courses you plan to take in the NEXT semester.

Courses registered according to course registration plans shall be given priority upon registration.

(3) Selection of Courses

Courses to be registered for each semester shall be determined based on the course registration plan described above.

a. 1st-Year Students: Regardless of fields that students have chosen, students are required to register for “Strongly Recommended Courses”.

b. 3rd-Year Students and Higher:

Courses for which students should register differ corresponding to individual fields that students have selected. Courses should be registered for, based on registration models for fields. Students must make appropriate decisions regarding course registration referring to University Regulation on the Completion of University of Aizu Studies, syllabus, class schedule, etc.

c. Notes for students of all years

(a) Students must make efforts to acquire academic credits within the standard year of completion for the courses.

(b) Regarding Upper Division Courses, select “Fields-Recommended Courses” of YOUR FIELD.

- (c) Please note that the number of academic credits earned only for strongly recommended courses and field recommended courses would NOT suffice for the number of credits required for graduating from the University; 128 credits.

(4) Course Registration Procedures

Complete the following procedures by the designated deadline:

- a. The first semester of students' first year
Course (other than Strongly Recommended Courses) must be registered for by submission of the "Course Registration Form" to the Academic Affairs Section of the Student Affairs Division.
- b. After the second semester of students' first year
Individual students are required to enter necessary information for registration of courses on the Academic System, using computer on campus. (Detailed instructions will be announced separately.)
- c. After the first semester of students' third year it is necessary for the supervisor to approve the course registration.
- d. Notes for students of all years
 - (a) After the designated period for cancellation of registered courses and addition of courses to register for changing of entries is not permitted, in principle. Therefore, students should consult with the Academic Affairs Section of the Student Affairs Division regarding unclear points in advance. In the case of the 3rd grade and over students assigned to the laboratory, approval of the supervisor will also be required at the time of cancellation
 - (b) For some English Language Courses and Strongly Recommended Courses, students will be assigned to a certain class. For these courses, instructors and classrooms are designated, and students must register for the assigned classes in principle. Please keep in mind that there are possibilities that academic credits may not be given in cases where students register for classes other than those assigned to them.
 - (c) The maximum number of credits for registration is 28 credits per semester and 56 credits per academic year, excluding credits from optional courses, teaching profession courses, intensive courses during vacation periods and the graduation thesis course.

(5) Confirmation of Course Registration

Be sure to confirm if your course registration is correct through the Academic Administration System.

Before finalization of course registration, students may be individually asked to visit the Academic Affairs Section for consultation regarding course registration. Students should pay close attention to e-mails, etc. for these types of notices.

After the first semester of students' third year, registration will be confirmed by having the supervisor approval the contents registered by the student (registration will not be finalized unless approved). Please consult with your supervisor on your plan in advance, and promptly report it to your supervisor as well as request approval when the student has taken registration. In case of problems, please consult the Student Affairs Division urgently.

(6) Restrictions on Course Registration

- A. You are not accepted for the following courses:
 - (a) Courses which you have not registered for
 - (b) Courses for which academic credits you have already earned
 - (c) Courses overlapping in the same class period
 - (d) Courses designated for third- and/or fourth-year students if students did not fulfill promotion requirements
- B. Students should pay attention to other courses as well, since there are other cases where registration is restricted, due to the number of teachers or the number of terminals in computer exercise rooms. Also, there may be overcrowding courses due to the unbalanced number of students in each field. In such a case, registration will be adjusted. So be sure to check related announcements sent via e-mail or posted online.
You cannot register for courses for which capacity has already been filled.
- C. When courses which the class capacity exceeds, students permitted to take the courses will be selected based on the relevant instructor's policies, their standard years of completion for the courses, assignment of classes, choice, preferred field, course registration plans, number of credits, score of TOEIC etc.

D. Students must NOT register for courses exceeding 28 credits per semester and 56 credits per year, excluding those of optional courses, teaching profession courses, intensive courses during vacation periods and the graduation thesis course.

(7) Retaking of Courses

If you fail in a course, you can take it again next time. However, since most of our courses accompany exercise sessions, there is a possibility that registration for courses will be limited due to the capacity of exercise rooms, etc. It is preferable to register for courses according to the courses' standard years for registration and earn academic credits in a well-planned manner.

(8) Additional Registration for Courses

In cases where students could not register for courses according to their plan, due to adjustment of the number of students to the capacity for the courses after the course registration period, they will be allowed to additionally register for other courses within the designated period.

(9) Cancellation of Registered Courses

To cancel courses you have already registered for, hand in the designated form, "Course Cancellation Report" to the Student Affairs Division within the designated period following the start of classes.

Do not keep being absent from those courses without applying for cancellation. Otherwise, assessment for those courses will be "Drop," and GPA (Please also refer to "12. (3)GPA".) will drop. This will bring disadvantages at job-seeking activities, application for scholarship programs, application for tuition exemption, etc.

11 Class Formats and Capacities

In order to enhance learning effects, student capacities for courses at the University of Aizu have been designated as described below. Students should take courses according to the formats designated based on the class code that they have been assigned.

(1) Class Formats

Students will be assigned to a class code for the following categories.

Class Formats	Classification	Particular Courses
Class C (Capacity of 40 students)	C-1 ~ C-6 for the courses	- Physical Activities - English courses (Introductory English 1・2・3・4) - Strongly Recommended Courses
Class E (Capacity of 30 students)	E1 ~ E9	English courses (Intermediate English1・2・3, Thesis Writing and Presentation)

12 Examinations and Assessment of Academic Performance

(1) Examinations

a. Regular Examinations

Regular examinations shall be conducted during a specified period at the end of the academic term. (Depending on the courses, examinations, quizzes, etc. shall be conducted whenever necessary.)

The examinations shall be conducted in the form of written examinations, oral examinations, thesis (report) submissions, practical exercises, practical applications, etc. (See the relevant course syllabi.)

In cases where a student fails to attend a minimum of two thirds of the actual class sessions for a particular course, as a matter of principle, the student is not eligible to take the examination for the course.

b. Makeup Examinations

In addition, in cases where a student fails to take examinations due to illness or any other unavoidable reasons, the student may take makeup examinations. However, in these cases, these students must attach a doctor's statement for illness or a statement of other reasons with an application for a makeup examination, and submit those documents to the Academic Affairs Division within 1 week after the relevant examinations.

c. Re-examinations

Re-examinations may be implemented at the discretion of faculty members.

Notes regarding examinations

- a. Students must follow the instructions of proctors.
- b. Students must put their Student ID on their desk during examinations.
- c. Should a student commit an inappropriate act during the examinations, the grade for all the courses the said student has been enrolled in shall be "F," and based upon the University Regulations, the said student may be subject to disciplinary punishment.

(2) Academic Dishonesty

Any student who commits an act of academic dishonesty such as cheating or using/acting as a proxy examinee in a periodic examination, etc., will be given a grade of F for the course in question. Furthermore, if the act is judged to be malicious by the Academic Affairs Committee, said student may be given a grade of F for all the courses in which they were enrolled during the academic term in question.

Article Eight, Paragraph 4 of the University Regulation on the Completion of University of Aizu Studies defines the courses subject to receiving a grade of F for acts discovered to have been committed in a given academic term as follows;

First quarter – First quarter courses

Second quarter – First semester and second quarter courses

Third quarter – Third quarter courses

Fourth quarter – Second semester and fourth quarter courses

(3) Grading

Grades shall be evaluated by judging a combination of examination results, general performance, and other factors. Passing grades shall be over 50 out of 100 points, and the prescribed units of academic credits shall be allotted.

The University has adopted the "Grade Point Average (GPA)," a global standard method for academic performance assessment at universities. GPAs are important figures for assessment of students' academic performance and background at the time of job-seeking activities, application for scholarship programs, application for exemption of tuitions, etc.

Grades shall be given according to points earned for the course, as described in the following chart.

Grade	Points	Judgment	GP (Grade Point)
A	80 ~ 100	Pass	4.0
B	65 ~ 79		3.0
C	50 ~ 64		2.0
D	35 ~ 49	Non-pass	0
F	Below 34

*1 If a student does not attend two-thirds of the total class sessions for relevant courses, or do not take examinations, the student's grade for the course shall be "F."

*2 If a student's academic performance for a course is assessed as a "D" grade, a "C" grade (50 points maximum) may be awarded through re-examination in the cases where the student applies for, and takes a re-examination.

*3 For students who receive “non-pass” grades for courses, re-taking of the relevant courses is necessary for acquisition of academic credits in or after the following semester.

(4) GPA

The calculation formula shall be as follows:

III-ii Information Processing Environments

1. Use of the Information Processing Environments

The information processing environments of the University of Aizu aim to realize advanced education and research of computer science.

These information processing environments are called as “AINS (The University of Aizu Information Network System.)” which is managed by the Information Processing Center (IPC) of the Information Systems and Technology Center (ISTC). AINS are architected to maintain entire coherence of hundreds (for Solaris11, 300, for macOS, 200) of FLOSS, or Free/Libre and Open Source Software.

Together with the University Library, the IPC belongs to the ISTC. and is responsible for the management and administration of AINS.

There are rules and manners that AINS users must strictly follow to enjoy the benefits of our information processing environments.

AINS is equipped with campus-wide Wireless LAN connectivity. It uses a system called EAP-TLS and EAP-PEAP , EAP-TTLS which combines safety and usability.

AINS provides students with a place to engage in the learning and research that is needed to become professionals. Students are strongly encouraged to make full use of all university facilities actively in order to become computer professionals in the future.

For maintenance of AINS at on-campus organizations/centers, undergraduates and graduate school students are hired as Computer Systems management Assistant. Duties include assisting with the management and maintenance of hardware, software, etc. Honorarium is paid to those employed as Computer Systems Management Assistants.

For more details of AINS, please read the “University Regulation on the Use of the Information Systems and Technology Center (Information Processing Center)” and “Instructions for Using AINS”. (Online versions are available at https://web-int.u-aizu.ac.jp/labs/istc/ipc.)

2. System Support Base (SSB)

For any technical issues regarding AINS, or questions about the information processing environment, email the SSB at std-help@u-aizu.ac.jp.

For any issues which cannot be solved by email or require ID confirmation, please visit the SSB.

Further, when your AINS account is locked due to violation of AINS rules, come to SSB with your student ID card for unlocking your account. Please note that contact by phone call or email will NOT be accepted for unlocking network accounts.

in various fields. This open architecture also enables users to get to vast software and hardware resources. Students are allowed to use computers in Computer Exercise Rooms whenever they want if they are not currently being used for classes. At any computer in those rooms, you can access your files and directories (folders) in the same manner.

- (2) A UNIX-based computer environment, selected for its easy-to-comprehend system operation, is available for use. Further, various Free/Libre and Open Source Software (FLOSS) programs designed to comply with UoA's computer environments are available. The UNIX-based OS mainly used here are Oracle's Solaris, Apple's macOS and REDHAT's RedHatEnterpriseLinux.
- (3) The AINS's open and flat network environment enables users to gain access to computer resources connected to AINS at any location transparently. Further, our on-campus wireless LAN enables you to connect a laptop, smartphone or tablet to AINS.

4. Computer Systems for Education

Computers installed in computer exercise rooms, etc. are available for 24 hours for lectures and exercises, students' reports and assignments as well as self-learning. In principle, students are given free access to these computers whenever relevant rooms are not in use for classes.
